

DISCLAIMER:

The Judiciary's legacy case management system, VTADS, lacks many features typical of modern case management systems, such as a rules engine and sophisticated data validation. As a consequence, there are data quality issues resulting from a lack of standard processes, data entry errors, and mistaken attempts to correct data.

This means that cases that should be included in the cohort may be missing and that the cohort may erroneously include cases from other years. The Judiciary has started a multi-year project to replace VTADS with a Next Generation Case Management System.
